Gaillard Proves
Big Surprise In Elimination Heat

Gaillard, son of King, defeated Frisky Flo, proved the hero in last night's elimination heat of the East Bay Stake at El Cerrito track. The mile hinders got up in a sensational finish, with Brown and Gaillard holding off Jew Undertaker for second place. The latter was the people's choice at 12 to 5, but got off slowly and couldn't get clear until too late.

As a result of the race, Gaillard Brown Jug, Jew Undertaker, Buddy Mac and Virginia City, finished in that order qualified for the final heat which takes place next Tuesday night.

The jinx caught up to To To, Jim Trout's dog, which tried to make it five straight last night. To To ran out as Andrews' Prize, a little male of Mike Andrews who won the fourth race, triumphed in the eighth event. Few dogs can win five straight.

Tomorrow El Cerrito stakes a seven-sixteenth with these dogs: Little Irish, Dido, Wintling Number, Pounding May, Nimble Lady, King's Daughter, J. A. Andrews, Oceanic Playboy, Lady War and Champagne.

Bear Oarsmen Battle
For Positions On Crew

(By ROGER JOHNSON)

United Press Staff Correspondent.

BERKELEY, April 2.—UP—University of California rowmen, the nation's outstanding contenders for

Olympic Games eight-oared rowing honors, settled down tonight to a free-for-all battle for positions on the varsity shell and a possible trip to Berlin.

With their first scholastic against their traditional acid-test rivals,

University of Washington's Huskies

—but 17 days away, the Californians are still far from being the finished products which brought 1928 and 1932 Olympic titles to Berkeley.

Such, at least, is the opinion of their hard-working mackinaw-clad coach, Carroll "Ky" Knight, who reported morosely that he didn't have any idea which oarsmen will occupy the first boat.

"It looks to me as though all the boys have a case of 'first boatitis', which is used about this time of year," he said.

The Bears will open their 1936 campaign against Washington over-three-mile course on Lake Washington near Seattle April 18. They are scheduled to quit training with a time trial April 12 and leave for the north the following day. The next step will be the Poughkeepsie regatta, at which the California eight will attempt to defend the championships it won in 1932, 1931, and 1935.

At Poughkeepsie, the Bears again will face Washington, besides Cornell, Syracuse, Navy, Pennsylvania and Columbia.

From there, Knight will take his men to Lake Carnegie, tentative location of the national tryouts for Olympic Games representation. The country's best crews, including some of those competing at Poughkeepsie and others representing athletic clubs and rowing organizations, will be on hand to stave off the Californians' third bid for the blue ribbon spot on the United States' crew roster.

After weeks of juggling, the varsity boat now strangely enough, houses only four of last year's veterans who rowed in victories at Poughkeepsie and Long Beach. A week ago, Knight placed six of the 1935 campaigners into "the first boat. He detected weaknesses in the combination, however, and transferred two of the group to subordinate shells.

At present, Gene Berkenkamp, stubby-haired Poughkeepsie performer occupies the key stroke position. Behind him are Laurence

Dadze, Carroll Brigham, Harley

Fremming, Al Daggett, Jim Graves,

Harper Thomson and Eyold Swanson. Other than Berkenkamp, Dodge

Brigham, Fremming and Swanson alone have had previous competitive experience.

Brigham estimated he will shift the personnel of the eight two or three more times before he breaks camp on Oakland estuary and takes his charges to Seattle. If he hasn't a satisfactory combination by then, he believes, the chances of an Olympi-ad "repeat" may go glimmering.

families also prepared to depart for their old homes.

Kindred allegedly choked his wife, when she hid a bottle of liquor from him. He then left the colony and has not been located.

Albert Fredericks, Pine county,

Roseau county, Minn., said they were leaving with their families because they were "dissatisfied with conditions." The Seattle Ruyon family will leave because of illness.

Right Of Way
Driving Rule
Is Explained

One of the principal causes of automobile accidents is a lack of understanding on the part of the motorist concerning right of way, according to Curry Auto Sales, Chrysler-Plymouth dealer here.

To clarify these rules, the Curry Auto Sales submits the following question and answer dialogue, covering the major provisions of law regarding right of way observance:

Q—What is meant by right of way?

A—The privilege of the immediate use of the highway.

Q—In approaching an intersection with other cars approaching both ways on the cross street, who has the right of way?

A—You are required to yield the right of way to any car which has entered the intersection before you have entered it.

FICKERT ENDS DAY ON STAND IN MOONEY CASE

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—UP—Defense witnesses of the Tom Mooney 1917 trial passed in verbal review today under the critical examination of Charles M. Fickert, one-time district attorney, now testifying in the famed labor prisoner's hearing on a habeas corpus application.

Fickert ended his last day of direct testimony. Tomorrow he will be cross-examined by John Finerty, Washington lawyer representing Mooney in his current legal battle to obtain freedom from San Quentin prison where he has served 18 years of a life sentence for conviction in the Preparedness Day bombing.

Fickert, who directed the prosecution's case against Mooney, devoted most of his time in the witness stand today to a lengthy description of cut-of-court activities of witnesses and denials of numerous "frame" intimations.

He told of a conference in the Olympic Club in 1917, at which Fremont Older, prominent San Francisco publisher, purportedly threatened to institute recall proceedings against him unless he discharged Frank Oxman as a prosecution witness.

Fickert said Older warned him he would publish statements in his newspaper which would lead to the termination of his position in private office. "I told Older I wouldn't do what he asked, and that there were other witnesses who could substantiate Oxman's testimony."

Oxman later was brought to trial on perjury charges. Fickert denied he had promised William McNevin $5000 and a job as police commissioner if he would act as foreman of the Mooney jury, as previously testified by Glen Denton.

Vesper Service By Girl Scouts

The Richmond Girl Scouts will conduct a vesper service, or "Scouts' Own," on Palm Sunday, April 5th, at five o'clock at the First Christian church.

Solos will be sung by Janet Graham, Violet Williams, Frances Gebhart, and Flora Mae Pearce; readings and recitations will be given by Patricia Davis, Rene Martie, Violet Williams and Kathryn Swearingen.

The choruses will be directed by Miss Sara Sires and Mrs. E. E. Greeley. Mrs. Lydia Purman will be at the pipe organ and Mrs. John Thorsen at the piano.

Survey Will Be Made Here By School Board

A survey of classes for handicapped children in the Richmond School department, particularly from the standpoint of transportation, will be made by the board of education, it was learned yesterday. The matter will be brought before the next session.

A person classes for handicapped children are being conducted at Lincoln school in the morning and at Lincoln school in the afternoon for younger children while older children are being cared for at the Roosevelt Junior high school.

In addition home instruction is provided for children who are unable to attend school. The school department has been making an effort to provide transportation for handicapped children attending the various classes, but the arrangement has not been able to have met with some difficulty, due to the fact that some parents who wish their children to attend certain classes are often unable to get to school on time.

There are 11 children in the Richmond school system who are handicapped. It is reported by the school department that the children come from widely scattered sections of the city. Members of the school board expressed the opinion that every consideration should be given to such children, and that they be better served by a better system, may be worked out to arrange for transportation to the class desired by the parents.

WHY WE NEED IODINE
Once in awhile we come across a substance which is a poison if taken in large amounts, but which in small amounts is necessary to health. One of these "friendly poisons" is iodine. While needed for continued well-being, nevertheless the amount of iodine required within the space of a year is comparatively very small. Yet, even though this amount is relatively small, iodine is undoubtedly one of the most important substances in the body. The body's iodine depends upon the fact that without it, the thyroid gland is unable to do its work.

The value of iodine has been recognized for many hundreds of years; for example, one of the first legends about this substance coming from China, is over four thousand years old. Even though the ancients did not know the exact nature of the element, they realized that it had a place in the body. The Chinese, for example, obtained the iodine for treatment purposes from the leaves of seaweed, or kelp. The name iodine comes from the Greek and means "violet-hued," referring to the violet vapor which rises when the seaweed is burned.

Even the earliest medical writings stress the importance of iodine in human welfare and its value was well known long before iodine was isolated chemically in 1811. The beneficial effect of iodine was secured from plants rich in iodine was understood by the Chinese, the Greeks and others. In 1895, Baumann demonstrated that iodine is used by the thyroid gland. Soon after that time, it was established that part of the iodine taken into the body in food or water is lost in perspiration and in the kidney elimination.

Because of the very definite biological need for iodine it is fortunate that this substance is widely distributed in nature. Iodine is found in practically all soils, in river water, and in sea water, especially abundant in sea water. Possibly, the best natural source is seaweed, and as this plant decomposes on the beach, the iodine is freed in a volatile form and thus passes into the air and is carried by the wind. Certainly, sea air is richer in iodine than air found far inland.

The iodine occurring naturally is kept in circulation, for the rain washes iodine out of the air, when it reaches the land. Iodine is known on the land will contain it. Then the iodine returns to the sea, and thus goes back to the sea, is absorbed by seaweed and the circle begins again.

Iodine is physiologically indispensable and is secured from the air, from water and from the food eaten. This food element is usually found in the greatest amounts in sea foods, in kelp, and in those vegetables grown in soil rich in iodine. Sea foods are more likely to get iodine out of the natural foods which have not been refined, then from refined foods. In most parts of the world, iodine is provided in sufficient quantities to meet the needs of the body.

I advise that the best way to secure an abundance of iodine is to use the foods which contain it. There can be no question but that iodine is safest and best in the form in which it occurs in foods and there can be no substance in an overdose of this type of iodine. Salt water fish, green vegetables, eggs and fruits are good sources. For example, iodine is contained in cod fish, haddock, salmon, herrings, crab, lobster, shrimp, oysters, clams, asparagus, pineapple and carrots. Since iodine is present in a great many common foods, it is comparatively easy to obtain plenty of it.

One of the recent discoveries about iodine is that it plays a part in helping the body to resist disease. There is evidence that a deficiency of iodine weakens the defensive power of the body against many infections. This is an additional reason to make sure that your diet contains the iodine-bearing foods. It is another good reason for using iodine, to be added to all of the other good reasons which we already know.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
(Bank all)
Question: Mrs. J. J. J. says: "I am looking for a method to keep my children healthy. Can you give me any advice?"
Answer: I will be glad to send an article on PREVENTING DANDRUFF to any reader desiring a copy. With your request for the article, enclose one large self-addressed envelope and ten cents. Massage of the scalp is helpful and the use of an antiseptic preparation is often of benefit. Brushing the hair each day is also recommended.

(Fruit Juice Part)
Question: Arthur T. writes: "I am interested in the fasting treatment and wonder why it works. What juices are used in a fasting regimen?"

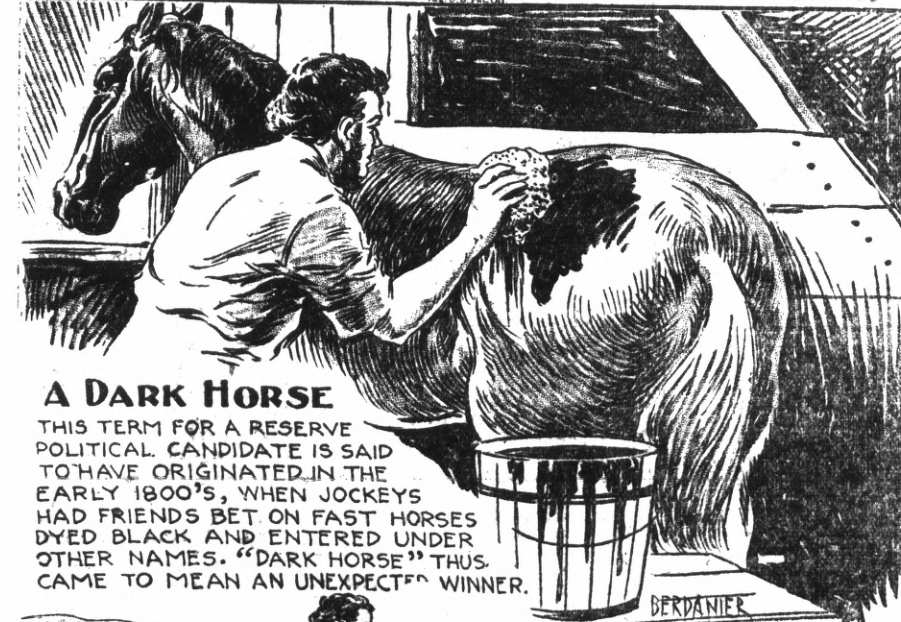

Answer: When a diseased condition is present the main thing to do is to take away these foods which the patient has been using regularly which have been living with him. Most diseases are due to over eating, or to indigestion, eating and drinking. The results are obtained when the patient stops eating for a few days. The fasting treatment permits the body to eliminate accumulated impurities far more rapidly than when regular meals are being eaten, as all of the energy formerly used in digesting food is available for eliminative purposes, being used to throw out toxic material. The fruit juices I recommend are orange juice, grapefruit juice, unsweetened pineapple juice and cranberry juice. The fast of five days may be applied in many of the ordinary diseases with excellent results. As a general rule, the patient responds well and notes an increase of both mental and physical vigor.

REPORTING POLITICS

THERE is no more exciting news assignment than reporting politics. This is true particularly in a presidential year.

United Press, with its customary foresight, last June began its (central, unbiased, impartial) political coverage for the 1936 presidential campaign. Representatives of ten states met in the mid-West news roots convention at Springfield, Ill., at that time.

Since then expert United Press political writers have been moving across the United States covering the big pre-convention stories; making coast-to-coast surveys of various states; interviewing prospective candidates; watching new political movements and reporting day by day maneuvering.

These factors insure dominant political news coverage for UNITED PRESS... ACCURACY... SPEED... INDEPENDENCE.

REPORTS HEARD, WHIST PLANNED BY LOCAL Y.M.I.

Reports on a banquet meeting of delegates from district Y. M. I. councils held last Sunday at a local hotel, were heard last evening when Burke Council of Y. M. I. met at the Memorial hall. M. J. Nugent, Jr., presided.

A whist party will be held by the lodge on April 30 at the Memorial hall. Jerry Riordan, Jr., heads the committee in charge. There will be many prizes.

A pedro tournament will be sponsored by the lodge in the very near future, it was announced.

Committees for the whist party include in addition to Chairman Riordan, Wesley Owen, Al Conon-fca, Pete Travallini, Alfred Krigar, A. Stone, D. Machetta, John Kenny, Jim Kenny, Nello Bianchi, E. Co-vell, J. Corr, J. Murphy, Chriss Corr, J. Hurley, John Starke and J. Sindiech, Jr.

The San Francisco Symphony orchestra under the direction of Pierre Monteux will open its concert in the men's gymnasium in Berkeley on Sunday, April 5 at 3:15 P. M. with the Schubert Overture known as the "Rosamunda" (Opus 26). The second number will be the G minor Concerto of Saint-Saens for piano and orchestra, with Gunner Johansen at the piano. Johann Strauss' "Perpetual Motion" and Richard Strauss' "Rosenkavalier" waltzes will complete the first half of the program. After the intermission will come Brahms' Fourth Symphony in E minor, generally recognized as the most characteristic of Brahms' symphonies for the simplicity and originality of its musical ideas.

A Venus by day—just another girl at night. How often I see it and you see it. And how sad! Yet its cause is so common and its cure so simple. The reason? Simply that so few women realize body complexion beauty is just as important as facial complexion beauty.

Too often, women who appear smart and youthful in street clothes look badly groomed and almost middle-aged in evening dress. And all because their backs, shoulders and arms have been neglected.

Make a habit of nightly beauty baths. Give all your skin the same careful attention you give your face. The best and easiest way to do this is to use a gently pure soap, preferably one with an olive oil base for the soothing cleansing lotion-effect and the velvety lather it gives you. Massage it particularly well into your shoulders, arms and neck, and use a long-handled bath brush to really scrub your back. Scrub your elbows, too, every night with a nail brush.

Be faithful to these beauty baths for a month, and you'll soon wear any low-cut evening dress with a lot more confidence.

THIS INTERESTING picture of Queen Mary and the Duchess of Kent at a recent film premiere in London was taken by infra-red rays in the darkness at the Leicester Square theater. Thank You

Mr. G. E. Milnes, Editor Richmond Record-Herald, Richmond, Calif.

My dear Mr. Milnes:

The first annual county-wide basketball tournament was successfully concluded this week, March 24, 1936, with the championship play-off.

We feel that a major factor in the success of this event was the splendid co-operation that you and your staff afforded us. The tourney was truly county-wide in the sense that over 200 adults from every major township in the county participated and that our audiences judging by their geographical partisanship, were also drawn from all points in the county. Without the excellent space given us in your newspaper, such wide interest could not have been aroused.

Please be assured of our continued desire to serve the county by enhancing the leisure hours of both adults and children.

Very truly yours, Recreation Division, County Department of Education.

Health Officer's Work Calls for Wide Field of Knowledge

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

AT ONE point in the administration of my city the past year the money ran out, and for a time, the regular city service for collecting waste and garbage was seriously curtailed. It fell back upon the individual citizen to pay for his own waste removal. It was interesting to hear the various comments on the situation. Some were for "showing them" meaning the city officials. "We paid our taxes and we want service." Occasionally a voice was heard whose owner probably never paid a cent of taxes. His idea was to let the waste material collect until the nuisance of it forced the officials to restore city service.

Situations of this sort are frequently met by merely making a noise when their importance requires that they should be carefully studied. All questions concerning public and possible graft in managing community affairs aside, it is the simplest sort of good business to see that all health regulations are carried out.

Any attempt at reprisal, by letting waste matter accumulate, means the invitation to infection and disease. Dirt always results in increased sickness, multiplication of vermin of every sort whose nimble feet and swift wings can spread disease faster than a multitude of doctors and nurses can overcome it.

Another group who interfere with the maintenance of hygienic conditions are those who habitually oppose carrying out the regulations. They seem to class these regulations in the list of what they call "fool notions." Consider for a minute the preparation back of sanitary rulings. A sanitary officer must have a fair amount of technical knowledge. In some cities, he must be a regularly trained engineer with a knowledge of bacteriology, light, heat, and electricity. Installations of all equipment must be for safe connections, outside, and protected surroundings. Ventilation is now a matter of science and not regulated by some one's nasal sensitivities.

Heat and cold are measured by a thermometer and the proper degree is not left to the varying notions of thick or thin people. Air conditioning in our business blocks is growing to be the accepted requirement for discriminating office workers. A justly known corporation is just establishing a new factory in our home town for turning out air-conditioning machinery and no doubt they will be as common as electric refrigerators. Water supply and drainage are important items in modern building.

One finds out that the job of health officer calls not only for engineering knowledge and skill but for endless patience and considerable tact. The entire subject of harmful gases and disease-breeding bacteria is tied up with sewage disposal, slaughter houses, reduction plants and animal shelters do far more than spread disagreeable odors through the neighborhood and require painstaking supervision.

Hard to Regulate

Eating places are as difficult a place to regulate as any, and part of that comes from the demand on the part of the public for instant service. Haste makes not only waste but dirt in many cases.

Somewhere in the sanitary setup we must have some trained medical men with laboratory equipment. We need a trap to tell us when water is pure, when food is unadulterated and milk is clean. When does this young person get typhoid or this child contract diphtheria? Make way for the health man. His badge should be his unquestioned credential.

Dr. Chrisman invites inquiries and correspondence from readers. Address him in care of this newspaper.

Short Cuts

Should food stick to a baking dish, allow the dish to soak for a while in warm water to which a little washing soda has been added before attempting to wash it.

If curtains shrink after laundering, there are numerous interesting ways in which they may be lengthened. For example, white or cream curtains may be bordered across the bottom with a wide band of pink, lavender or any pastel shade that will fit in with the color scheme of the room in which they are to be hung. A curtain with a figured pattern may be given a border of any color which occurs in the pattern itself.

The best cooks do not salt steaks and chops either before or during the cooking period. They broil them unsalted and let each person extend to the seasoning according to his own taste at table. Salting meat for broiling seems to interfere somewhat with the browning process.

Guide To Charm

Still Time for Easter Hair Help

By JACQUELINE HUNT

THERE is still time for you to have a new permanent for Easter if you will call your favorite hairdresser for an appointment at once. You will have time, too, for at least one re-conditioning treatment.

Even though your hair seems in good condition at present it is a good plan to massage the scalp lightly to improve the circulation and to have a hot oil shampoo to improve the texture of your hair before your Easter party.

Exercise is the most efficient way of arousing the circulation, but you cannot exercise the scalp voluntarily. Even massage of the scalp is not always sufficiently stimulating. I suggest that you try this professional trick for sending a fresh supply of blood to nourish the scalp and give you lustrous hair.

Remove your clothing from your shoulders, then, placing the hands back over them, feel along the region between the shoulder blades and tops of the shoulders proper. You will find a large muscle on each side. Place your hands over these muscles and pinch with your fingertips as though you were trying to lift them up. Pinch as far down as you can reach at first, then slip your fingers up an inch and repeat.

Continue until you reach the neckline at the back of your neck, then move the hands out to the tops of the shoulders until you locate the big muscles on top that pinch this muscle from shoulder to ear. Repeat the shoulder and neck massage until the scalp itself tingles with warmth. This indicates an aroused circulation. Five to ten minutes massage may be needed.

Now try this exercise for your neck that will not only make it more slender and shapely, but will further arouse the circulation in the scalp. Bend your head forward and clasp your hands over the nape of your neck. With your hands clasped firmly over your neck, try to raise your head, pulling as hard as you can on your neck muscles, at the same time resisting with the muscles of the arms and hands. Pull and stretch for one minute and relax.

These exercises are fine for normalizing a too dry or too oily scalp condition. Continue them after you have had your new wave to help keep the hair glossy.

Flowers in Kerchief and Hat Vogue

By IRENE VAIL

New York — The fashion for flowers has brought interest in floral patterns on both linen and chiffon handkerchiefs. Several leading shops report their floral handkerchiefs are the best sellers. Many women are wearing chiffon handkerchiefs as scarves or tucked into the belts of dark sports or afternoon dresses for a touch of color.

Flower hats, or the hats with flower crowns and straw brim, are all generally favored, curiously enough, by women who, as a rule, are opposed to flowered millinery. New York women take their flowers below, not above, the head—at least, that has been their attitude about flowers for more years than one cares to remember. But this year seems to find them in a more receptive mood. There are more flowers worn than most of us remember seeing on parade.

There is no disputing that even-tinged gowns that allow the wearer to create attractive pictures have appeal. Gowns, for example, that have scarfs, and panels that develop from the shoulders and can be manipulated in various ways, make it possible to change the appearance of a dress, and allow the wearer to be very formal on occasion, or less if desired.

A Vionnet gown that has caused comment is the one that has a scarf that can be worn about the shoulders or can be worn in a careless fashion, leaving one shoulder bare.

You must also recall that spangled dresses, threatened for some time, have actually arrived, so you will be interested in hearing that the widely spaced spangle is liked better than the all-over spangled variety. Flesh chiffon with widely spaced wheel-like motifs of crystal and silver is one version.

The wave of brilliant color that has swept over all the accessories for spring has given handkerchiefs a new importance. The smart woman picks up the color of her blouse, her scarf or her bag in a handkerchief, and chooses the shade with as much care as she exercises on the choice of her gowns.

Fifth Avenue stores are ready with floral and geometric prints and solid colors in all the new accessory shades—"coral," "mimosa," red, "turf green," coral, London tan, and violet.

There's just no getting away from the subject of prints. If you are the type who can stand great splashy multicolored figures, go to it.

You have your choice among these, which are not for everyday wear, and the all-over kinds which take every sort of form of the animal and vegetable kingdom. The short printed coat, somewhat fitted, is stunning on the right woman and is designed to be worn over a monotone frock.

Markets Help Housewife Being Ahead of Season

SHOPPING is a thrill for the imaginative cook who wants to change from the ponderous fare of winter to light, colorful dishes that reflect the season's mood.

Fortunately the offerings of our markets are ahead of the season, anticipating the need for freshness in our menus. Broilers, new peas, globe artichokes, snowy mushrooms, avocados, rhubarb, field greens and plump strawberries are a few suggestions for pepping up this week's menus.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "My measurements are, bust thirty inches, waist twenty-six, and hips thirty-one. I have tried some of your exercises for the chest and find them good. I am never tired after doing them—except the ones where you kneel on the floor and lean forward until the chest touches the floor."

"I am sure it will do me a lot of good. If you will only tell me some way to get rid of my stomach! I will practice the exercises until I have a figure I can be proud of!"

Since your letter was written I have given a series of exercises for strengthening the back and abdominal muscles and I am sure you must have seen them. Twisting and bending exercises and leg exercises taken while you are lying on the floor are good for these muscles.

I would suggest also a light girder for keeping your tummy in place. I am glad you like the chest exercises.

QUESTION: "Can you tell me the best depilatory to use? I have a heavy growth of hair on my legs and under the arms. I would prefer something that would discourage the growth of hair—P. B."

You can stop the growth of hair only by killing the hair follicle with the electric needle. This is an expensive proposition and not advisable over large areas. The wax depilators—epilators, rather—pull the hair from beneath the surface of the skin so the regrowth is somewhat delayed.

The Need for Water

Water—pure water—was recently given its greatest national advertisement by the flooding floods which interfered with the supply of many cities. Women—wives and mothers—who are taking an increasing interest in citizenship may find in the pure water shortage caused by floods a reason for being more active. Women engineers are few but there is no reason why they should not study for and enter the profession or no reason why they should not take part in public affairs.

A Tonic for Women

There are few tonics as good for a woman—especially a wife—doing something for her beauty that she really cannot afford. Such as going out and buying a new suit, a new hat, or getting her hair done by an expert.

Mayor Who Rules By Personality

By TALBOT LAKE

WILLIAM MCNAIR, mayor of Pittsburgh, brought into the public eye by the devastating flood of his city, is one of the most picturesque figures in politics. Before the depression, before a lot of things, a man as breezy, as informal, would hardly have been considered material for the chief executive's post in that conservative city.

He has a good stage presence and is as much at home in a vaudeville theater as he is on the serious platform. McNair, a single-taxer, does not give routine allegiance to any political party and, so far as he can, runs Pittsburgh affairs in an original and personal manner.

One of his policies that has attracted attention is his refusal to let the city participate in large-scale public works projects connected with Federal relief.

McNair has a strong and forceful personality and has done much to get himself into the newspapers. Although the non-partisan council is the chief legislative body of the city, the debonair mayor, during the depression, has often disregarded its wishes.

He can put on a cutaway and take his part in any official gathering, or he can shed his business coat and talk with laborers. He is, by birth and belief, strictly a man of the people.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "Does a gentleman always remove his hat in an elevator when ladies are present?"—J. W. D.

ANSWER: A man need not take off his hat in a department store elevator or in an office building elevator or in an elevator in any place regarded as public.

QUESTION: "Is there any limit to the number of godfathers and godmothers that a new-born baby may have?"—O. T.

ANSWER: It is customary for little boys to have two godfathers and one godmother, and for little girls to have two godmothers and one godfather.

QUESTION: "Where should a fork be placed in a table setting when it is the only piece of silver to be used?"—N. B.

ANSWER: As the only piece of silver, it may be placed at the right instead of at the left of the plate.

Girl With Dependents Is Handicapped in Her Love Affairs

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

THE problem of the dependent relative has many angles. A girl who is supporting her family is handicapped in the matrimonial race I admit. Young men whose object is matrimony are not inclined to select wives who have a string of dependents hanging on to their skirts or hiding behind them.

The writer of the letter herewith has my sympathy. She must not think of herself, however, as an exception, or even as a product of the depression. She says:

"Dear Mrs. C. C. Spjinski: I gather from close reading that most of the problems people discuss with you pertain to the married state. I am a single girl and have no intention of marrying in the near future. I am just one of those depressed Cinderellas whose every dollar is required to keep the home circle together."

"When men call at my home they find an unemployed brother and father sitting around, and that is the last I see of them."

"Once is enough. I do not know that I can blame them. I meet plenty of nice young men in business, but I suppose they think they would become responsible for my family if they married me. Therefore, they move along. Not hard to understand."

In Same Position

"I know several girls in a position similar to mine. They are very nice girls, but they have gradually become responsible for their parents and possibly other relatives. Of course, men do not like that. They usually have a dependent or two of their own. Most of them make more money than girls and they can stand the strain without too much suffering. Every Saturday when I get paid my mother takes practically all of my money and gives me back a dollar at a time for lunches and carfare."

"I would like to see any man stand for that. In the first place, he wouldn't turn up his money over, and in the second place, he would make things uncomfortable for younger relatives who sat around indefinitely living on him."

"However, I think it is unfair and hard on us girls to be the support of families and get no credit for it."

"Not only do we become household slaves, but our chances of marriage disappear as soon as the facts get around. I think you should start a crusade to lift some of us out of the abyss into which we have fallen. Bitter Sweet."

Don't let yourself be imposed on even by your parents. Don't hand over your unopened pay envelope. Hand over all that you can, but you are certainly entitled to keep enough out for current expenses and to provide yourself with appropriate wardrobe.

I had to advise stifling your hospitable instincts, but under the circumstances I do think you had better not exhibit your dependents to any marriageable young men. Nor would I make a long story of your responsibilities and woes. Men hate hard luck stories from women. Don't get into the habit of telling them.

Hard Luck Stories

It isn't just since the depression that the weak have taken advantage of the strong. The world has always produced several leaneers to one on whom they can lean. It may be your hard luck to be born one of those who assume responsibility. It may even be a form of indulgence with you.

I know there are many who will disagree with me, but I cannot help thinking that the strong do have a responsibility toward the weak and that children do owe something to their parents.

I know that's an old-fashioned, even an exploded, theory, but the fact remains that it does seem right to some of us that children should do what they can for their elders, and not for making a leaning post for able-bodied brothers. However, it does them more harm than good.

Mothers who are depriving their sons of the pleasure and character-training of a dog should consult their nearest expert dealer in dogs. A terrier can be as good a citizen as any other breed if he has been properly trained and is sensibly treated.

ciding what his next step would be. DISCONTINUE WENDEL CASE

Around midnight the grand jury who had been in session since 9 A. M. filed out of the room and Mercer County Prosecutor Erwin Marshall said:

"The grand jury voted to discontinue the Wendel case."

It was learned, however, that the murder charge still stands against Wendel and that Marshall will have to move for its dismissal. He is not expected to do this before the second week in May.

VIRTUAL RETRIAL

Yesterday's proceedings were virtually a retrial of Hauptmann before a grand jury which has no authority to pass on his guilt or innocence.

Attorney General David P. Wilentz appeared and testified for more than an hour—trying, as always, to send Hauptmann to the electric chair for the crime of which he was convicted in Flemington last year.

Governor Harold Hoffman also testified in another skirmish in his long fight to save Hauptmann until "mystifying angles of the case are cleared up."

And, finally, Wendel himself, wearing a brown suit and gaiters, was brought across the Bridge of Sighs from the Mercer county jail and led into the grand jury room early last night.

Albert D. Osborne, prosecution handwriting expert at the Flemington trial also was a witness and he had before the jury the scrawled ransom notes that were sent to Col. Lambert in the spring of 1932.

Brooks was charged with passing a check for $9.70 on G. L. Allyn of Richmond. Attorney Gordon Hamilton of Martinez, was named by the court to defend him.

The probation application was referred to County Probation Officer Thomas A. Boyer, who will make a report April 13.

lodge the postmistress at Walnut Creek in favor of one of the faithful. If the story I hear is entitled to credence the answer is quite simple. The lady it is rumored is held in her job through the influence of a prominent Republican politician, who has gone even so far as to promise to support McAdoo the next time he runs, if she is permitted to retain the position.

While I admire the trait of friendship and loyalty thus displayed, on the other hand I can readily realize the state of mind in which it puts the members of the committee. At the meeting Wednesday night the committee again made its recommendation with customary monotonous regularity. I am interested to see just how far it will get in the way of results with the strings pulled in an opposite direction by the politician of opposite faith lurking in the background.

INEXPLICABLE

I have long been an advocate of the political principle that those who bear the brunt of the battle are entitled to be remembered when the awards are made. In my own party I have too often seen the guardsmen given to those who straddled the fence while the campaign was in progress and were the first with their demands for a place at the food trough when victory was won.

er Mongolia. Japanese charged Moscow with deliberate distortion of the facts for purposes of international propaganda.

LIE CAMPAIGN

A War Office spokesman said informally that Moscow seemed to have started a program of deliberate perversion.

Meantime the Manchukuo Foreign Office in Hsinking indicated it will continue to insist that border incidents must be settled between Mongolia.

And the inexplicable thing to me is that in many instances they knock the nice, ripe persimmon off the tree and it falls in their lap. The argument is of an made that the non-combatant has made no enemies, but I confess I am too obtuse mentally to follow that line of specious reasoning. In fact, to the contrary I would no give a whoop in Hades for the man who can actively participate in politics without making enemies. I believe with an old-time tutor of mine: "Show me a man without any enemies and I will show you a man without any friends."

SOMETHING DOING

What the basic doubt of the committee is I do not know. The members came into office at the last state election, and prior to that the former committee, which had gone through the presidential campaign, had made its recommendations relative to national patronage; hence the conflict. But whatever the situation the present committee is going places soon in the recognized determination to be recognized. All of which will make hurriedly installed as foreign minister in Premier Koki Hirota's cabinet.

Between Manchukuo and Outer Mongolia.

Ignoring Moscow's control of Outer Mongolia's foreign affairs, Hsinking sent a vigorous protest to Uruk (Ulan Bator), capital of Outer Mongolia, against the recent border incidents "for which Outer Mongolia solely is responsible."

That Japan was ready to meet Soviet defiance with equal determination was indicated when Haniz and his recommendations were recognized. All of which will make hurriedly installed as foreign minister in Premier Koki Hirota's cabinet.

GUARD DESERTS

It was claimed that many of the Emperor's Imperial Guards deserted to Italy after the battle. The guards were comprised of hand-picked troops and were the best equipped and trained army under the Negus' command.

Meanwhile, it was announced Italian occupation of the Lake Tana region, in the British sphere of influence, should not disturb Great Britain as Premier Benito Mussolini will continue to adhere to his off-repeated promise to respect British interests in Ethiopia.

Officials denied that Italian occupation of the Tana region was for political reasons or in order to force a settlement or show down with Britain in view of the Rhineland crisis.

Central M. E. Preparing For Easter Service

Special Easter services will be featured in the Central Methodist church Sunday, April 12.

At the morning worship hour, 11 A. M., a mixed quartet will give two appropriate selections and Mrs. Zaida Chanin will favor with a vocal solo. The evening worship hour, 7:30 P. M., will fittingly climax the day with the presentation of an inspiring pageant, "The Chelenge of the Cross," in which the six-tyves of cross-bearers will be portrayed, who came in response to the earnest call of the Evangel, "come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you and learn of me." Mrs. Mildred Martin will represent the Evangel and the six disciples will be characterized by the Misses Carolyn Brandau, Ruth Farrow, Vivian Muller, Mrs. Amaral, Margaret Cronn and Mrs. Velda Voss.
